Palais

The Palais collection is synonymous with grandeur inspired by the ornamentation of Versailles and other chateaux of its likeness within 17th century France. It employs traditional documentary elements of various silk covered flowers, jasmine hangers, complex jacquard braids and luxurious hand-tied silk tassel fringes.

Handmade braided guipures, silk-covered wire coils, layered rosettes and over-hangers of jasmines inspired by 17th century documentary trimmings were amongst the transcending elements in the trimming of the Palais collection. The historical context provides a foundation for creating a luxurious, ornate formal collection that complements today's interiors.

Palais' color palette is composed of several traditional combinations exhibited by Botanique and Claret, while the subtle mix of gold and dove in Oro or the vibrant fuchsia and chartreuse of Jardin, are more evocative of today's vision.

The Palais collection employs intricate elements, highly complex weave structures, and a mélange of deeply saturated hues. It honors the aesthetic of traditional grandeur and reinterprets those elements in an exquisite collection of silk passementerie to enrich the most luxurious interiors of today.

Woven of silk, the Palais collection offers a comprehensive spectrum of pattern and sumptuous color. The collection portrays exquisite complexity and craftsmanship as evidenced in multiple sizes of plaited cords on tape, dimensional guipure coil jacquard border, lush scalloped tassel fringe and cut fringe with hand-crafted jasmines.

The single tassel tieback is adorned with hand-covered silk, coil edged leaves and petals as well as cascading silk guipure floral jasmines that elevate the collection's level of detail and sophistication. It is complemented by the double tassel tieback whose mold is embellished with a crisscross of guipures and skirt is embellished with hangers of tassels. The Palais key tassel and rosette mirror characteristics from both.
